Chapter 1 by Sapphire Rivers

Prologue-

"That's the stupidest idea i've ever heard. Genetically modified child soldiers!?"

"Does anybody else agree with Colonel DK?"

Nobody raises their hand.

"Well then, our decision is made."

"And it may be time for a new Colonel"

I close my eyes and breathe out slowly as the taunting continues. Ignore them. Don't let them bother you. Only the newest recruits at the training facility tease me. The longer your here, the stronger, better, and for some reason well mannered you are. Well, except for me.

Unlike most of the others, I was specially bred to fight, yet I can't. The scientists gave me sharper senses, faster reflexes, and super human strength, night vision. There are actually a couple I can't remember, but the adaptations are all for the battle field, no wonder they all mock me. I can't even complete level 1 simulations.

Child soldiers, the "genius" who came up with that idea has no care, i'd say. As soon as strategies class is over we have 30 minutes of free time. I practically run to Room 238, where Ky is waiting. We troops don't get names, but we typically make them for ourselves. My name is Ivy. He's also modified. Ky's one of the ones that got part animal DNA. He has wings, barley visible gills, and everything I have. Unlike me he's on Level 68 and very successful.
